Practical Tips for the Prosecution Team

Tip 1
High Profile and High Stakes Prosecutions Need Some
TLC

High Profile/High Stakes Matters

- Identify high profile and high stakes prosecutions
- Get prosecution teams with post-grant review experience working on those matters
- Forget some of the pre-conceived aspects of volume prosecution
 - E.g., cheap and fast
 - E.g., minimal or no patent prior art search
 - E.g., claim count limitations
 - E.g., discussion of the prior art

Prosecutors and Litigators Need New Thinking

- You need to incorporate legal changes as soon as possible into your applications, because the petitions before the Board have already used the latest cases
 - Patent-eligibility
 - Joint infringement
 - Obviousness
- Ambiguous claim language is subject to broadest reasonable interpretation in the PTAB
 - The Board has used it to narrow or cancel many claims already
 - Interpretation will be the subject of much argument in a proceeding
 - Cannot cloak the invention in technology-speak and expect that it will not be understood by a PTAB judge
 - Expert declarations accompany most PTAB petitions now
- Prior art undercharacterizations/mischaracterizations will come back to bite the drafter
 - There is no need for a new reference or new issue to challenge patent claims

Tip 2
Amendments are the Enemy of Patent Asserters (and the Friend of Patent Challengers) in Patent Review

“No Amendment

“Dependent Claim

Substantive Amendments May Trigger Intervening Rights

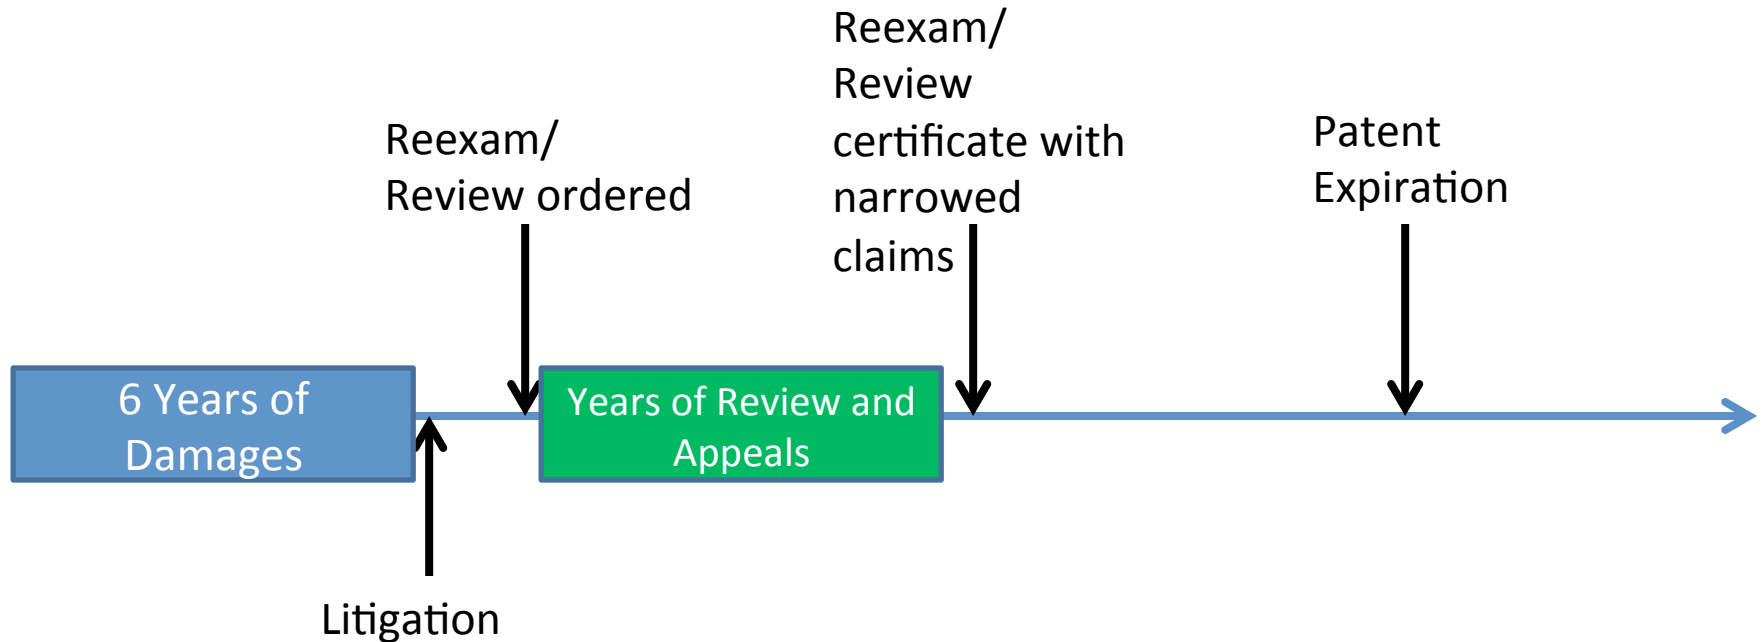

- Absolute Intervening Rights
 - 35 U.S.C. § 307(b) for reexamination has same effect as 35 U.S.C. § 252 for reissued patents
 - 35 U.S.C. § 318(c) for IPR (and § 328(c) for PGR and CBM) has same effect as 35 U.S.C. § 252 for reissued patents
 - Can result in forgiveness of damages prior to issuance of reexamination certificate (“past damages”)
- Equitable Intervening Rights
 - 35 U.S.C. § 252(b), last sentence “made substantial preparation for”
 - Court may allow an infringer future practice of invention to allow for infringer who scaled up in reliance of invalidity of patent

Past Damages with No Substantive Amendments

Potential Damages

“Past Damages” with Substantive Amendment

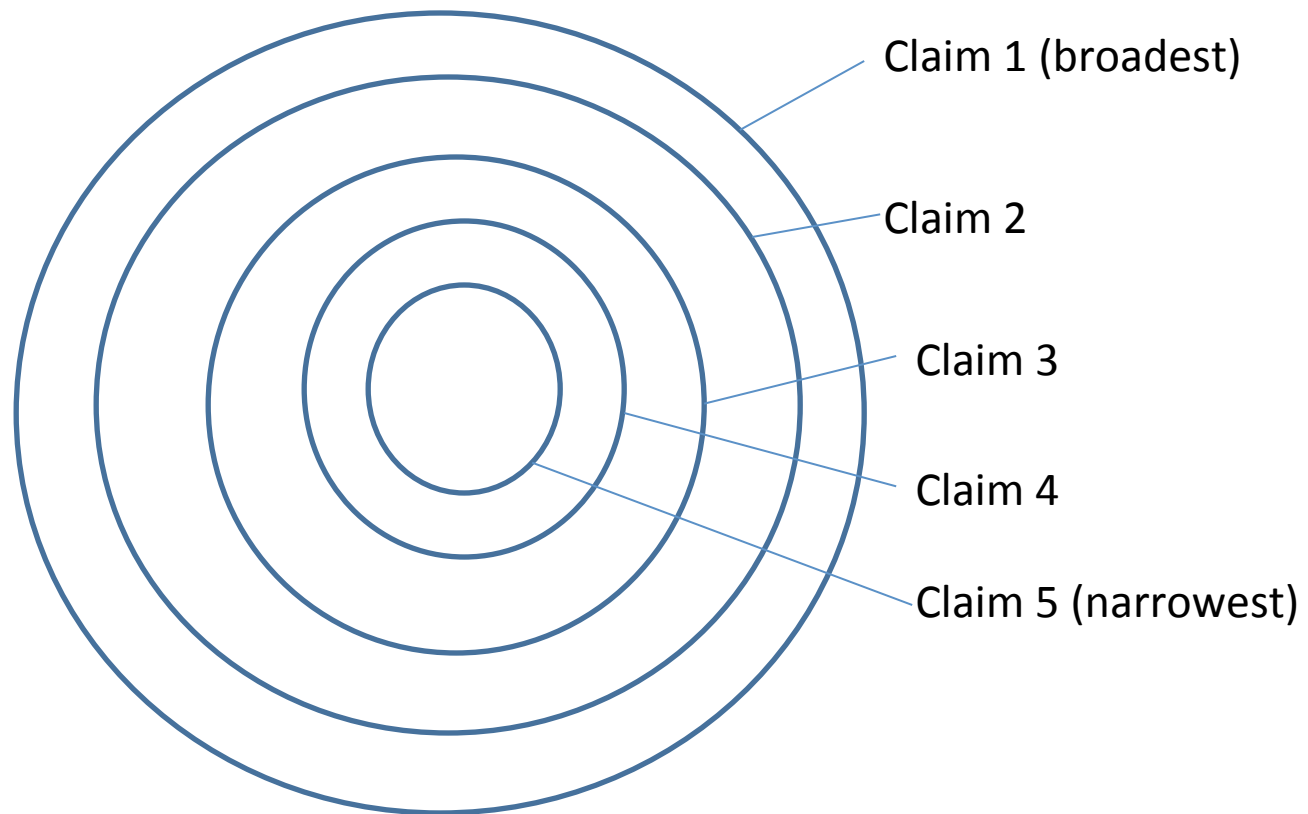

Potential Damages if no original dependent claim infringed (subject to intervening rights)

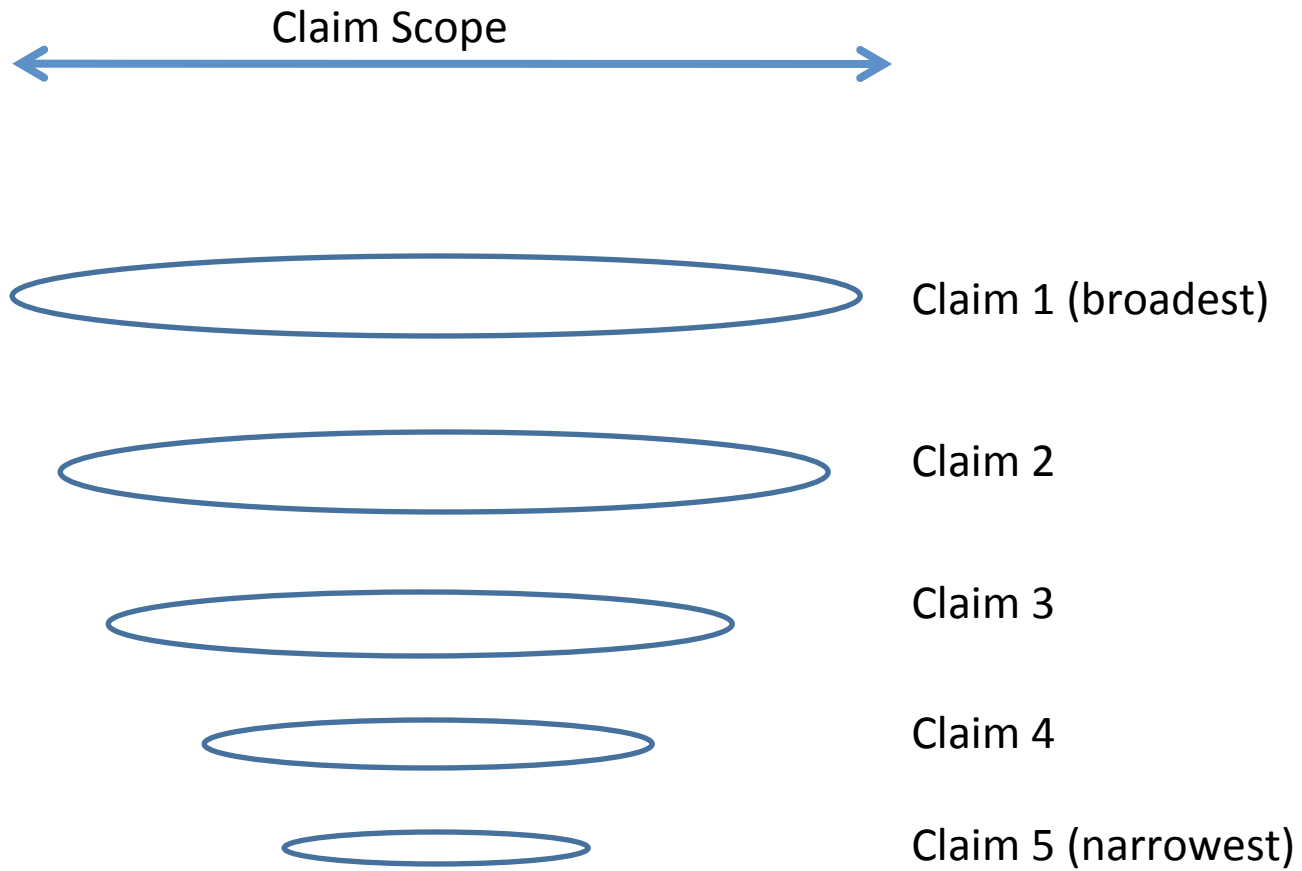

Potential Damages if original dependent claim infringed

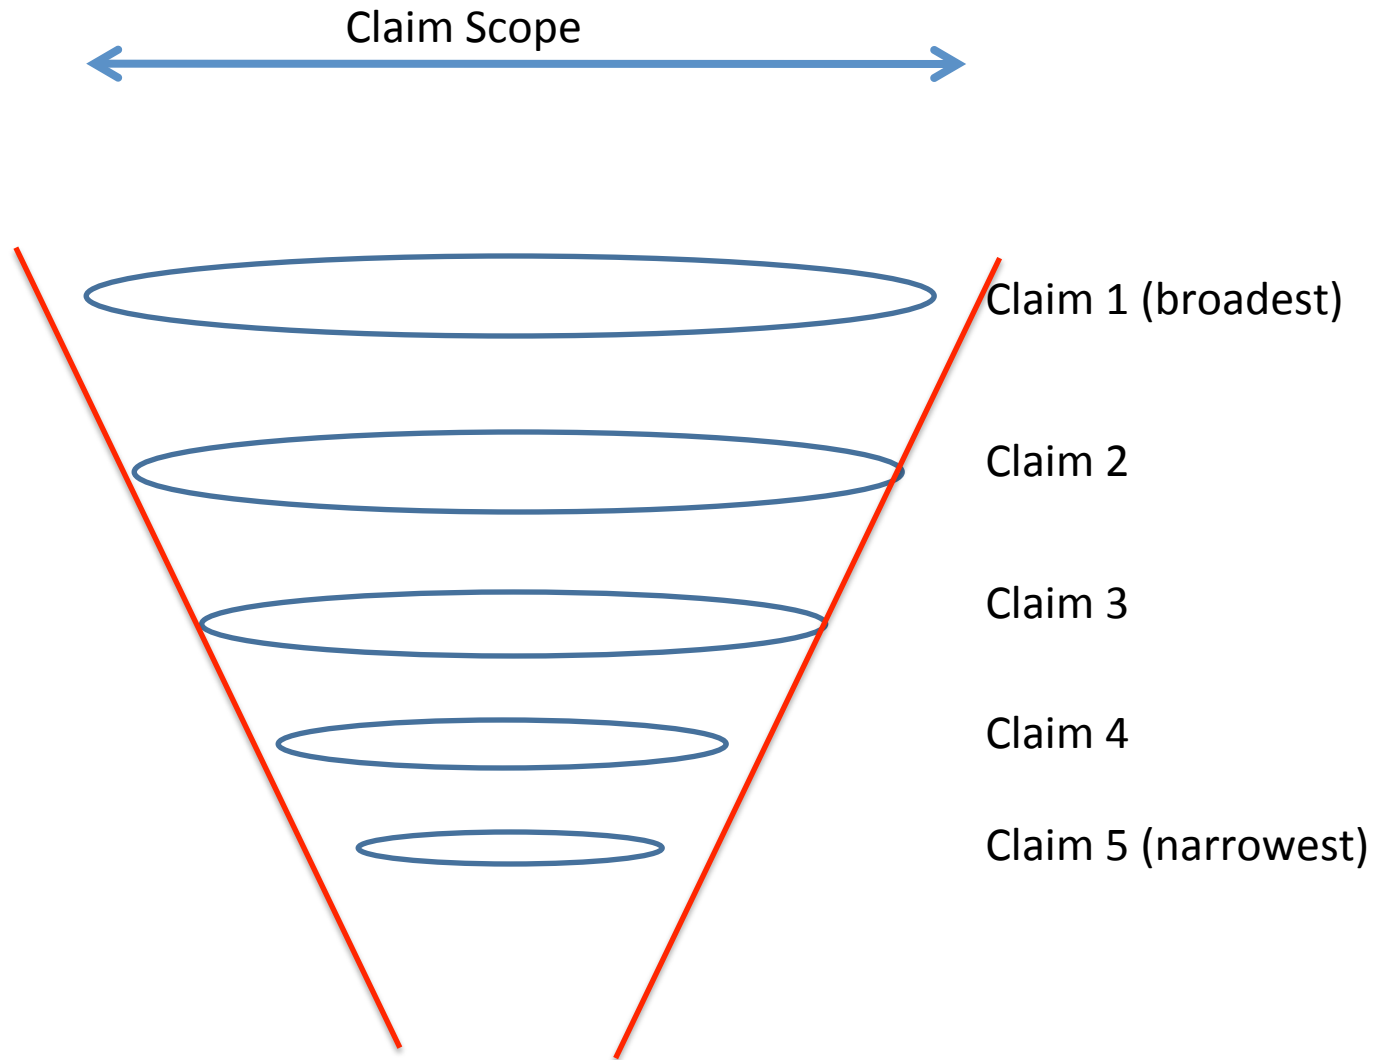

Tip 3
Think of Your Invention as a Continuum and Thoroughly Claim it With Nested Dependent Claims

Think of Inventions as a Continuum and Gradually Claim the Continuum

- Claim your invention in ranges
- Narrow it by successive dependent claims that add further nested limitations
- By claiming a range of gradually varying claim scope, you greatly enhance the odds that at least some of the claims survive in case prior art is later learned to be closer than first thought
 - Make “landing pads” of narrower dependent claims to best preserve past damages as an option in a parallel or subsequent litigation
 - Make competitors hesitate to initiate the reexam/review in the first place

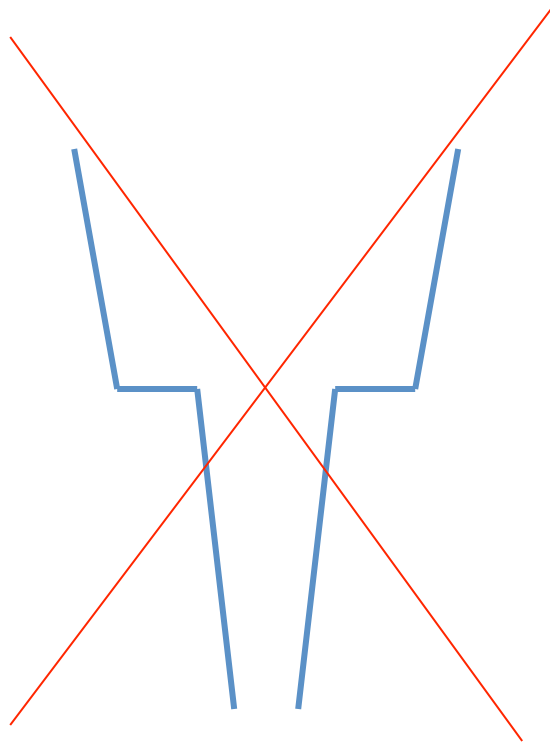

Tip 4
Structure Claims to Avoid “Substantive Amendment”
in Post-Grant Proceedings

Progressively narrower

Progressively narrower with abrupt step in middle of dependent claim chain

Abruptly narrower claim 2 of dependent claim chain

Tip 5
Where Possible Employ Independent Claim Element Diversity to make the Patent Harder to Challenge

Use Independent Claim Diversity

- Independent claim diversity provides more work for claim challenges by petitioner;
- Claim diversity has better changes of surviving review
 - NOTE: May be difficult with current restriction practice

PTAB Observations Thus Far

- The Board is running a very tight ship
 - Early forgiveness due to the new proceedings
 - Less so in the future
- The Board will not tolerate a lot of gaming
 - Litigation strategies are frowned on
- The Board will define your claim terms
 - Whether you do or not!

PTAB Observations Thus Far

- The Board will make very detailed findings of fact
- Claims reviewed on an individual basis

CHANGES TO WATCH FOR

Rise of Written Description Challenges

– 35 U.S.C. § 112, ¶1

- § 112 rejections are common in post-grant
 - PGR, CBM
 - § 112 is Built into the process
 - IPR
 - § 112 is not automatic, but observed:
 - w.r.t. priority date challenges
 - New claim language

Written Description Prosecution Tips

- Haste makes waste
 - Just plain old hurrying can make problems
 - Don't Expect the Examiner to check for written description
- Occasional spot checking of written description support will find nonconformists
- Beware the last minute “convenient amendment” for allowability
 - Need prosecution practices with consistency and closure
- Poor Framing of issues causes a lot of problems
 - Negative limitations
 - “exclusion” of the prior art
 - Half-baked amendments to overcome prior art
- How about some healthy background (e.g., boilerplate)?

Rise of Indefiniteness Challenges – 35

U.S.C. § 112, ¶2

- § 112 rejections are common in post-grant
 - PGR, CBM
 - § 112 is Built into the process
 - IPR
 - § 112 is not common in IPR – may result in loss of jurisdiction of the Board
 - Board cannot interpret the claims!
 - Can result in IPR being dismissed in extreme cases

Tips for Avoiding Indefiniteness

- Reward fewer antecedent basis defects
- Reward fewer poorly defined terms/phrases
- Means-plus-function
 - 35 U.S.C. § 112(f), Williamson v. Citrix, and Aristocrat Technologies Problems

Rise of Technical Prior Art Challenges – 35 U.S.C. §§ 102, 103

- Skilled PTAB 3 judge panel
- Do your homework or someone will do it for you

Fast Prosecution-to-PTAB Cycles

- Will be less than 1 year in some cases
 - Don't forget, you don't always go to trial!
 - Settlements
 - Waiver
 - One year bar

Quick Tips for the Prosecution Team

- Dependent claims can help save recoveries for past damages
- Smart claims are claims drafted with prior art in mind
 - informed claiming
 - not too broad
- You can draft to avoid post-grant challenges
